

YOU CAN TELL THE WORLD

Telling Your Story on the Internet,
Mike Bellah, Ph.D.

WHAT STORY WILL YOU TELL?

Sometimes you don't choose your story; sometimes your story chooses you.

Columnist Mike Bellah blends the tale of a tumultuous midlife crisis with a grueling mountain bike ride through the West Texas canyon lands.

WHO IS YOUR AUDIENCE?

Anyone on the Internet

In the modern world, it may be harder than ever to get published, but it's easier than ever to get read.

WHERE IS YOUR AUDIENCE

- Facebook
- Blogs
- Online magazines
- Personal website
- Special interest website
- Company website
- Others' websites

Internet readers want content, and they want it for free!

WHAT WILL YOU SAY TO YOUR AUDIENCE? —THE HARD STUFF

- Grief
- Guilt
- Depression
- Anxiety
- Addiction
- Rejection
- Fear
- Disappointment

Speak to the suffering, and you'll never lack for an audience."—Charles Swindoll

WHAT WILL YOU SAY TO YOUR AUDIENCE? —THE FUN STUFF

- She's Still Turning Heads
- Confessions of an Old Tuba Player
- A Ghost Story
- Finally Ready for Y2K
- Father of the Groom
- I Believe in You, Santa
- Happy 30th!
- Everybody Else
- Recovering the Pan Within

WHAT WILL YOU SAY TO YOUR AUDIENCE? —YOUR LIFE JOURNEY

Your story will define you online (do Google searches for "midlife," "midlife crisis" and "midlife affair").

Columnist Mike Bellah blends the tale of a tumultuous midlife crisis with a grueling mountain bike ride through the West Texas canyon lands.